

REGULAR SESSION
THE CITY COUNCILTAXES TO BE RAISED FOR COM-ING YEAR $145,135.00 COUNCIL
VOTES TO PAY MEMORIAL
BILL

The common council met Monday night in regular session and the meeting lasted until 11 p. m. Mayor E. R. Beal asked what the council wished to do with the mayor's veto of the resolution appropriating $150 for Memorial day. Alderman Matt Max arose and stated that in his opinion the council should vote to pay the full amount. He stated that the Decoration day exercises were the best in years and that the council had as much right to pay $150 as $75, which the mayor recommended in his veto. It was voted to receive and file the veto and, later when the bill was voted upon, it carried by a vote of 6 to 2, one absent and one not voting.

For the third time the council voted for a street commissioner and for the third time failed to elect any one, the vote being a tie between B. D. Fosdick and J. E. O'Brien the present incumbent.

County Drain Commissioner Deake was present and stated that residents of Ypsilanti township had petitioned for a drain and that it would affect residents of Ypsilanti city. A resolution was passed for a joint meeting to be held in two weeks by the Ypsilanti Town board and the city council.

A letter was read by the City Clerk Holmes, from the Detroit Trust Company, stating that their attorneys had refused to approve this issue of paving bonds on account of a defeat in the charter amendment voted upon in 1920. The council voted to have the city attorney draft an amendment to the charter to be voted upon at the next election. It was also voted to lay all paving matters on the table until bonds can be lawfully issued, which will not be until after another election.

The Ypsilanti Press was given permission to do excavating under the building at the corner of Huron and Pearl street, where they intend to remove their plant. Permission was also given the German Evangelical church to use the sidewalk out to the curb in building their new church at 201 River street. Mrs. D. V. Harris was given permission to build an addition to her house on Pearl street and Sam Ruben permission to build a barn.

The moving of an old house from Normal street to Wallace Boulevard created quite an argument. It was generally conceded by all the aldermen that it was poor business to allow old houses to be moved through the streets for the reason that it destroyed trees and injured the pavement, besides often spoiling a good neighborhood of fine residences. Geo. Ayres had asked permission and upon his agreeing to give a bond and put the house in good shape it was voted to allow him to move it.

Parking privileges were given the Gas company on account of their rear entrance being blocked.

The matter of a place for tourists to camp over night was referred to the Park Commissioners and Chief of Police. It is planned to set off a part of Recreation park and to install fire places where they can cook and heat water and coffee, the expense to be borne by the City or Board of Commerce. Secretary Eckley brought the matter before the council in a petition.

A lively discussion over the location of the market was had when a number of merchants on the East side of Huron street protested against having the market on their side of the street. A number of merchants on the same side wanted it left where it is and all of the merchants on the opposite side of Huron street wanted it left on the East side. Alderman Moor made a motion to have the market on the west side, in as much as all the merchants wanted it. Alderman Sutherland made a substitute motion to have it on East Cross street. Alderman Ahleson stated a certain element wanted no market and were trying to boost it out. The whole matter was laid on the table when the substitute motion was lost by a tie vote.

The hotel company were notified to file a bond or cease building operation. The receipts of Beyer hospital for the month of May were $2546.98.

Justice Stadtmiller reported that he paid to the City Treasurer for fines, costs and fees collected in May, the sum of $250.70.

The hospital committee recommended that J. C. Cook of Ann Arbor be hired as the architect for the new contagious hospital to be built here. The report was adopted.

An ordinance was passed to prohibit the building of gasoline and oil service stations in residence districts where 3-4 of the buildings are used for residential or school purposes, unless all property owners consent, and also get the consent of the council. A violation of the ordinance makes the offender liable to a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100 and each day the gasoline station remains is considered a separate offense.

The amount of money to be raised by taxation the coming year was reported to be $145,135.00 and the supervisors were instructed to levy the amount on the tax rolls.

The council unanimously passed a

MAKE MOTION TO FREE ORLANDOATTORNEY ASKS MOTION ON GROUNDS THAT NO JURY
CAN BE FOUND THAT WILL CONVICT HIM

A motion was made Tuesday by Attorney Thomas Hawks, of Detroit, to dismiss his client, Peter Orlando, who had twice been tried in the circuit court for implication in the Saline murder. The first trial ended in a mistrial and the second in a disagreement.

Attorney Hawks asked for the dismissal of his client on the grounds that Orlando had faced two juries and that there was no likelihood of a jury ever reaching a verdict in the case and that it was largely due to him that the two men now serving a life sentence in Marquette were convicted.

Quoting from the Ann Arbor Times-News of Tuesday Judge Sample has this to say:

"Judge Sample said that as far as he could see opinion as to Orlando's guilt in the county was greatly divided. Judge Sample said the prosecution had done its duty in placing Orlando on trial. He thought, however, that it would be useless incurring further expense in a trial which, could only end in a disagreement. Judge Sample said he would feel inclined to discharge Orlando on condition that at any time the prosecutor so desired Orlando would return. Mr. Fahrner was requested to find out whether an order for Orlando's release could be given with such a stipulation. Judge Sample will give his decision when this information is forthcoming."

Whether Orlando is guilty or not in the eyes of the judge and the men who sit on the jury, the fact remains that it was one of the cold blooded murders ever committed in this county and it was proven that Orlando drove the men there who he claims committed the deed. His defense was that he was forced to drive at the point of a gun. True Orlando did give assistance after his arrest in convicting his two pals—any coward would do that to clear himself. He may not be guilty to committing the actual murder of George Burg and his hired man, but the fact that he kept still until his arrest is proof that it is deserving of some kind of punishment.

PAIR OF SHOES CHANGES
MAN'S BOASTED HONESTY

Miss Mayme L. Evans of Maple street recently admired a pair of shoes that her sister had purchased in Detroit for $7.00. She was down town and noticed a Ypsilanti merchant having the same identical shoes for $6.50. Miss Evans purchased the shoes and went to the post office to post a letter. She laid the shoes on the center table at the post office and in her hurry forgot the shoes.

About half an hour later an unknown man took the shoes to the window of Mrs. Helen Hewitt and told her he had noticed them lying on the table, and that being an honest man he thought it best to turn the shoes into Mrs. Hewitt, which he did, all the while telling her what an honest man he was and that it always paid to be honest. One of the clerks remarked about the man's profusions of honesty. About half an hour later the "honest man" came back to the post office and stated the shoes belonged to his sister and would Mrs. Hewitt give them to him. She did and when Miss Evans called, the shoes and honest man were gone. Miss Evans has no brother and is still looking for the shoes.

His first venture in the newspaper field was at Imlay City. Later he purchased the Milan Leader, which he sold to L. B. Johnson. Leaving Milan he moved to Hart where he lived for some time before moving to Ann Arbor. While a resident of Hart he was made mayor and was much interested in civic work in that city.

OLD AINSWORTH
PROPERTY SOLDYPSI-ANN LAND COMPANY BUY
PROPERTY AND WILL SUB-
DIVIDE 50 ACRES.

Wednesday one of the largest real estate deals in the county was consummated by five Ann Arbor men, who call themselves the Ypsi-Ann Land Co. when they purchased the old Ainsworth property on the Washtenaw Avenue road, just west of Ypsilanti. This property consists of 200 acres and the price paid was approximately $100,000.

It is said that 50 acres of this property will be sub-divided into lots and sold for resident property. Work will start at once and engineers and landscape architects will be employed to put the property up to the highest standard and make it an ideal place for homes.

The men responsible for the deal are Bernard E. Harkins, Roscoe Bonisteel, William N. Bengel, J. Carl Malcolm and Charles A. Sink. The deeds were drawn by Attorneys Bonisteel, of Ann Arbor and Lee N. Brown, of Ypsilanti. The purchase was negotiated by Harkins & Son, of Ann Arbor, through William N. Bengel.

This is one of the prettiest pieces of property lying anywhere near Ypsilanti and with these men behind it, will become a fine addition for homes.

RAY BATTERY WIN 15
INNING GAME SUNDAY

The Battery boys added another scalp to their collection Sunday when they took the fast Holmes Athletic club of Port Huron into camp in one of the fastest games ever played on a diamond in Ypsilanti. Two games were played the first going to the Battery boys in fifteen innings by a score of 3 to 2. Up to the sixth inning not a runner crossed the plate. The Port Huron boys put across two runs in the sixth. The home team coming across with one run. In the eighth inning another run was added on the right side of the score board and from then on until the fifteenth a string of 0 graded the score board, when the Battery boys succeeded in getting the winning run across.

Crossman pitched for the locals and went fourteen innings, getting a three bagger in this inning. Ryneerson was then put in and struck out the first three men to face him. Crossman pitched fine balls, allowing the visitors only seven hits. Hammerschmidt did the receiving.

In the second game Ryneerson went to the mound and for seven innings the visitors were only able to connect for one hit. This game was called at the end of the seventh to allow the visitors to catch their car for home. The score stood 0 to 0.

Next Saturday and Sunday the fast Howell Independents will be here. The Saturday's game will be called at 3:30 and the Sunday's game at 3:00. It is said that the Howell boys are playing fast ball and another good game can be expected.

The Ypsilanti Independents lost to the North End Athletic club at Recreation park Sunday by a score of 9 to 7.

HUSBAND BEATS IT
WHILE WIFE IS AWAY

It is not every boot black that furnishes music and also keeps perfect time to the music as he shines shoes. Miss Alene King, Normal student, of Davisburg, on Sunday exhibited a perfect good shine to her parents who were visiting her and told them that they were shined to music.

"Billie" Blanks is the enterprising individual that conducts the establishment on West Cross street. He has a phonograph in his place and every stroke and slap he makes with the shine cloth is in harmony with the jazz music that is played on his phonograph.

ROTARIANS HEAR
A FINE LECTUREHON. T. E. JOHNSON TALKS ON THE NEED OF EDUCATION
MONDAY AT ROTARY

Hon. T. E. Johnson, state superintendent of public instruction was the speaker at the Rotarian luncheon Monday noon. Mr. Johnson told of what the education institutions had done for the country in the past twenty years. Going back to the Little Red School House he brought his hearers up to the present time with its modern schools.

In speaking of the school taxes, he said that thousands of dollars had been appropriated for the better breeding of cattle and hogs; that it had always been a hard fight to get appropriations for the schools. That in some localities there were people who seemed to think that the schools of 20 years ago were good enough for the present day. Twenty years ago we were traveling at the rate of 12 miles per hour; today we are going at the rate of 60 miles an hour. The schools had only kept up with the pace of other things. That more and better schools and better qualified teachers would be in demand.

It was on of the finest addresses ever given before the club, and will long be remembered by those who heard it.

H. A. Milloche, student of the Normal Conservatory of Music sang a couple of songs that were highly appreciated by his hearers. Mr. Milloche is a fine singer and always sure of a welcome with the Rotarians.

Visiting guests besides the speaker and singer were A. C. MacMillan of The American City Bureau and Prof. Theo. W. H. Irion of the Normal.

KIWANIS HEAR
MR. PATTERSONTAKES FOR HIS SUBJECT THE FUNDAMENTALS OF LIFE.
FIVE IMPORTANT THINGS TO CONSIDER

Grove Patterson, managing editor of the Detroit Journal, gave a very interesting address at the meeting Wednesday of the Kiwanis Club.

He said: "Before we consider the fundamentals of life we must get a true perspective of life. We should study things as they exist all over the world and then compare them with our city, state and nation. The important things in life are Religion, Patriotism, Love, Conventionalism and Thinking. I will consider love first because it is most important. It is made up of two parts, altruism and selfishness. Selfishness is to be defended, when it is normal. It is self preservation. Altruism is doing something worth while for some one else out of love. If men were not altruistic there would be no credit in business. Religion is very necessary. I do not mean Christianity, Catholicism or Protestantism or Buddhism, but every man should enter into relation with some superior being. Every man is naturally religious. Patriotism is vastly more important than many of us think it is. The Internationalist loves every country but his own. The true patriot loves his own country so much that he can see good in other countries. Conventionalism works great hardships on some at times, and some say we should do away with it. But we can not afford to do this. In the final analysis conventionalism represents the accumulated knowledge of the human race. We must live up to the standards set by conventionalism or society will not hold together. Imagination enables men to see things as they should be. It has built all the great bridges of the world and painted all the great pictures.

Thinking is about the only thing nowadays that can not be substituted. Optimism is a substitute for thinking however, and many optimists when they see danger say unto themselves, there is no danger and when their wives tell them there is a burglar in the house they pull the cover over their heads and say there is not, only to find the next morning that their money and watch is gone. Courage is better than optimism. There is a tendency today to revert to the group stage of man and prejudice is substituted for thinking. People divide on religion and labor questions and throw stones at each other. We should think more and live for each other and help each other in life."

It fills the demand for an inexpensive but reliable disinfectant and paint. It has none of the objectionable qualities of whitewash and it paints and disinfects in one operation. Carbola is made by combining a finely powdered mineral pigment with a disinfectant 20 times stronger than carbolic acid. It is neither poisonous nor caustic—harmless to the smallest chick or to stock that licks a painted surface—but it kills lice, mites, fly eggs, etc., and helps prevent the start and spread through flocks and herds of many of the contagious diseases that affect poultry and livestock.

Carbola is used and endorsed by thousands of poultrymen, dairymen and breeders, and by many agricultural colleges and experiment stations.

Give Carbola a trial—you never will regret it—and you can get your money back if you are not satisfied.

Dr. Arnold Lorand, a noted Austrian physician of Carlsbad, Czecho-Slovakia, has written recent book entitled "Old Age Deferred." Dr. Lorand has treated a great many Americans coming to Carlsbad for the baths. He has remarked that "Americans seem to be showing age prematurely."

He entitles one of his chapters "The Great Advantages of Much Milk in the Diet for the Prevention and Treatment of Old Age." He especially warns against destroying the valuable ferments in milk by pasteurizing or boiling and he adds "It is of the greatest significance that raw milk has also a property to kill microbes to a certain extent," and states, "it has been found that the microbes of cholera died in raw milk;" that Hemp, a noted German physician of Dresden, has found that raw milk had also the property to kill the bacilli of typhoid fever, and he adds "but it is of the utmost importance to remember that these bactericidal properties of raw milk are destroyed if the milk is heated to 60 degrees C. There is a wonderful difference in the effects of boiled and raw milk. Animals or children never thrive so well on boiled as on raw milk. It has been shown by many authorities that Barlow's Disease and rickets may be due to drinking heated milk, especially when such milk is not fresh, and that calves, even, fed on boiled milk, acquire rickety deformities of the bone and scorbutic conditions. "Thus it is evident," says he, "that we should always use raw milk whenever possible. Considering the enormous importance of this question for the public welfare, it would be advisable to put all establishments for the supply of milk under the control of physicians or veterinary surgeons."

Fordson TRACTOR

"Yes I've more Time for Myself Since I Got a Fordson"

The Fordson Tractor is taking much of the drudgery out of farm life; it is solving the labor problem; it is reducing the cost of preparing land by almost one half of what it was with horses; and it is saving one third to one half of the farmer's time; and making farm life more attractive.

The Fordson will run your threshing machine—and at the most opportune time for you. It will operate the milking machines, saw your wood, fill your silo, pump the water, and take care of every kind of belt work—

And don't forget—it will plow six to eight acres in a ten hour day, handling two plows with ease.

Thus the Fordson is the ideal year-round tractor. It will pay for its fall and winter keep in many ways.

There's a big story to tell you about the Fordson—and a true one—come in and get the facts. Or, if you prefer, telephone or drop us a card and we will bring them to you.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BY EZRA W. PALMER, C. S. B.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Entitled
Christian Science: The Science of Spiritual Understanding.

People agree that God is Spirit and that Spirit is omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent. They agree on these three great fundamentals because they are taught in the Bible, and because on no other basis can we conceive of a Supreme Being. We cannot divide God's power and still have Him supreme, and if His power is divided, to whom will we assign the power taken away from God? If we assign it to another agency called evil, we divide the universe; the one God, the Great I AM would no longer be supreme, and there would be two powers arrayed against each other, the powers of good and evil with the result—a universe of conflicting forces, of chaos and disorder. Christian Science accepts and teaches these three great verities of Spirit, omnipotence, omniscience, omnipresence, not theoretically nor abstractly, but as living realities, and it teaches that in the understanding of these fundamentals lies the solution of all human problems. Thus if a Christian Scientist faces sickness he relies on the omnipotence of God to heal it; if he faces a condition where ignorance prevails he returns to God and relies on the omniscience—the infinite all-knowledge of God—to supply him the wisdom and light to meet the situation. If evil seems to hold sway he knows that God is omnipresent, universal good, and that the divine presence is at hand to destroy evil.

On the other hand, the adherents of current religious teachings do not as a rule rely wholly upon the all-power, all-presence and all-knowledge of God. If sick, they will usually rely upon drugs or other material means and turn to God only as a last resort when hope of relief from other sources has utterly vanished. And so, likewise, the materially minded are prone to rely on human means for help when disaster appears instead of turning unreservedly to God. They rely on others, trust to human will and human ingenuity to aid them, although experience has proved time and again that these material agencies afford no sure and genuine relief.

Reliance on God Taught in the Bible.

The teachings of the Bible are perfectly clear on this point, Mr. P. said further, such verses as over and over again, the Scriptures call men to rely wholly on God for every need. "Put not your trust in princes;" "Woe to them that do down to Egypt for help;" "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness," to prove his point. The great difficulty mortals have experienced in the past is that they have not seen clearly the difference between relying on Spirit and on human agencies. The adherents of scholastic theology and the materially minded have failed to grasp the real meaning of the First Commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." They have not made a clear distinction between matter and Spirit. Christian Science draws a clear and unmistakable line of demarcation between the eternal things of Spirit and the false evidences of the physical senses.

"God is Spirit," as Jesus declared, and man and the universe are mental and spiritual. But the five corporeal senses do not see spiritual things; to them, Spirit and spiritual things do not exist; they recognize the opposite of spirituality, the false belief of a matter world and a matter creation. Seeing only material things, the objectification of his own corporeal senses, the materially minded man relies on these instead of turning his gaze Spiritward and depending wholly on God. When he has made a great discovery when he learns to rely on spiritual sense instead of physical. Through spiritual sense, man learns that he is immortal and perfect. Spiritual sense gives a man a correct view of the universe and of God. The physical senses give him a distorted view of all things. They tell him that man is mortal, physical, subject to sin, disease and death. This view is temporary and must yield to the eternal fact that God, man and the real universe are imperishable.

Material Knowledge Leads to Disease and Death.

Christian Scientists have learned from the study of the Bible, and the writings of Mrs. Eddy, and from their own experiences, that there is a vast amount of knowledge floating around in human thought which is ephemeral, illusive, unnecessary. It is knowledge based entirely on the evidences of the physical senses, and the more we know of this knowledge, the more deeply our thought is impregnated with it, the more darkness, pain and disease we manifest. Why is it that specialists frequently become the victims of the diseases they study so assiduously? and why is it that the study of medical works tends to bring on ill health? He who imbibes material sense testimony and relies on it is like a man working his way into the depths of a bog. He is in danger at any moment of being swallowed up in its dark depths. Mr. P. quotes from the C. S. textbook the following sentence: "Knowledge gained from material sense is figuratively represented in Scripture as a tree, bearing the fruits of sin, sickness and death. Ought we not then to judge the knowledge thus obtained to be untrue and dangerous, since the tree is known by its fruit?"

Christian Scientists rejoice that they have accepted the great discovery of the difference between false human testimony and that genuine knowledge of God which heals and saves. The apples of the tree of knowledge of good and evil no longer allure them. They know that they must worship the Father in spirit and in truth, as the Master declared, and in their demonstration of Christian Science they clearly hold to these fundamentals: that God is not man and man is not God, but man is the creation, the reflection of God. They know that God is not in matter nor is matter a part of God. Matter is a part of mortal mind, the fictitious opposite of God. Only as we recognize the aliveness of Spirit and the nothingness of mortal man and a material world can we prove the supremacy of Spirit.

Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science.

Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, grasped the eternal truth of existence which the great spiritual thinkers of the Bible saw. She climbed the mountain of holiness, that mountain "Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth," and from that her spiritual vision the absoluteness and perfection of God and the unreality of things, mortal and material. Because she saw the same truth, the same pattern, the same model of thought, which prophet, seer and Christ Jesus saw, her writings coincide with the spiritual sense of the Scriptures; they give the same spiritual illumination as do the Bible texts when understood. The result is that the Christian Science textbook, Science of Health with Key to the Scriptures, is indeed a key to the Scriptures, and Christian Scientists are healing the sick and freeing the sinning as did the disciples of old when they finally understood the import of the words and works of the blessed Master.

In "Foolish Wives," which is to be shown at the Wuerth Theatre beginning Monday, von Stroheim plays the role of a bogus Russian Count, whose habitat is Monte Carlo and whose occupation in life is to make love to every woman who strikes his fancy. Some he cultivates merely to wheedle them out of money.

By varying his blandishments with downright blackmail, he manages to live like a prince. His cane, monocle and cigarettes are worn with the grace of one to the manner born, his Russian officer's uniform is glistening and speckless, and in the luxurious villa he calls home, he affects startling bathrobes, silk pajamas and exotic diets.

Von Stroheim is the most polished "he-vamp" on the screen. He knows women and understands them as much as any man. He knows the weaknesses of feminine character and how to insinuate himself adroitly into their good graces. All this and more he portrays on the screen in "Foolish Wives." With his debonair smoothness, he swaggers his way into women's hearts.

"SMILIN' THROUGH" HERE NEXT WEEK

It is with the greatest of pleasure that Mrs. Signor owner of the Martha Washington Theatre announces for the coming Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week, "Smilin' Through." It is without a doubt one of the greatest pictures of the year, having received Editorial comment from hundreds of theatres throughout the United States.

"Smilin' Through" is a screen version of the fantastic play of the same name by Allen Langdon Martin. The play was inspired by the song of Arthur A. Penn. Jane Cowl appeared in the play successfully for two years. The story of "Smilin' Through" has to do with an unrelenting hate, an immortal love and the tender romance of two charming young people. John Carteret, a proud Irish aristocrat, was about to marry Mooneyen, the toast of the entire countryside, when Jeremiah Wayne a rejected suitor, appeared on the scene and the shot that he fired at John took the life of Mooneyen. Years afterward John Carteret adopts Kathleen, the little niece of Mooneyen, whom she grows to resemble. When Kathleen, in her early teens she falls in love with Kenneth Wayne, the nephew of the man who killed Mooneyen. There are many other interesting tales told in the same beautiful way before the finish of "Smilin' Through," making it in all a very charming attraction. In the cast are Norma Talmadge, Wyndham Standing, Harrison Ford, Alec B. Francis, Glen Hunter and Miriam Battista. Sydney Franklin directed the picture and it is one of his greatest achievements.

Words to Be Avoided.

There are two simple words in our language that have caused more misery than all the plagues of history. They have broken lifelong friendships, set brother against brother, separated lovers and caused children to weep. These poisoned words have sent innocent persons to the gallows and have turned the debaucher into a demagogue. Think well before you let them pass your lips. They are "They say"—Exchange.

Pretty Indian Legend.

On a high point of Mount Adams in the state of Washington are 136 apparently human footprints, made in mud that has long since turned to stone. The tradition of the Yakima Indians is that the spot is the place where "the great canoe" landed after the Flood, and that the footprints were made by the people who stepped from the "canoe" to ground softened by the long inundation.—Youth's Companion.

Soothing Effect of Garden.

We go out into the garden to rave against the world. Our flowers look at us—some call us. We release one from a bind-weed, to another we give water, we note a few seedlings, we stand in admiration before a plant which has come suddenly into bloom; and we have forgotten the world and all our troubles.—John Trevena.

MORGAN HORSE IS HONORED

Booklet issued Telling of Remarkable Sturdiness of Castor, Owned by Government.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Morgan Horse Club of America has honored Castor, an 800-pound registered Morgan horse bred and owned by the United States Department of Agriculture, by issuing a booklet telling of his remarkable sturdiness and endurance. Castor was one of the few horses to finish the United States mounted service endurance test held last October. The horses traveled from Camp Alfred, Vail, N. J., to Washington, D. C.

During the test Castor carried 250 pounds, nearly one-third of his weight, without developing any leg trouble.

Castor, Registered Morgan Horse.

His loss of only 12½ pounds during the three-day test was a remarkable part of his performance, especially considering the fact that he was by far the smallest horse in the contest.

The booklet published by the Morgan Horse Club is entitled "Morgan Horse Wins Laurels in Mounted Service Endurance Test, 1921." The author is H. H. Reese, animal husbandman in charge of the United States Morgan horse farm, Middlebury, Vt.

CANONCHET, THE SACHEM OF THE NARRAGANSETTS

THEY had told Canonchet that he must die.

"I like it well," replied the old sachen of the Narragansetts. "I shall die before my heart is soft or I have said anything unworthy of myself."

Canonchet had good reason to hate the English. They had taken his father prisoner and turned him over to his enemies, the Mohegans, who had tortured Mantonomo to death. When King Philip formed his confederation of New England tribes against the whites, Canonchet was sympathetic to the Wampanoag's cause, but he did not take the field immediately. The colonists suspected him, however, and demanded that he sign a treaty agreeing to give up to them any of King Philip's people who fled to him.

"Deliver the Indians of Philip? Never!" was the chief's indignant reply. "Not a Wampanoag will I ever give up—no, not the paring of a Wampanoag's nail!"

So the colonists sent an army against Canonchet and on December 19, 1675, it struck the Narragansetts in their fortified town of Sunke-squaw, R. I. There Canonchet lost a third of his nation, but with the remainder, he carried the war to the colonists with such fury that his name was second only to that of King Philip as a word of terror in New England.

Finally in April 1676, he was captured. The English offered him his life if he would help them against the hostile Indians, a proposal which was met with laughter and an indignant flash in his eyes. Next they offered to spare him if he would send orders to his people to make peace.

"I am a sachen," declared Canonchet proudly. "You have no one here of equal rank, so I will not talk of peace."

"If you do not accept the terms offered, you will be put to death," he was told. "I would rather die than remain a prisoner," replied Canonchet. "Onoka, son of Uncas, is here. His father killed my father. Let him kill me."

His request was denied. They took him in triumph to Stonington, Conn. As a reward to the friendly Indians, the Pequots were allowed to shoot him; the Mohegans to behead him and the Niantics to burn him. As a return favor, the Mohegans presented his head to the English council at Hartford.

So Canonchet of the Great Heart came to the end of the trail.

The Quarter at Church.

An instance of momentary success in the collection has been noted when the minister published the following soliloquy in the congregational calendar: "I am 25 cents. I'm too small to buy a quart of oil; I'm too small to buy one-half pound of candy; I'm too small to buy a ticket to a good movie show; I'm even too small to buy a box of undetectable rouge; but most people think I'm 'some money' when I come to church."—The Christian Register.

The Tuttle Hill Birthday club meeting Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Austin was enjoyed by all who attended. No special business was taken up for the consideration, but a suggestion that some thought be given to a winter program brought remarks from a number and it was decided to have roll call at the July meeting, each member to respond with a suggestion of what would be a desirable program for the winter months. These ideas are to be brought to the meeting on slips of paper, these to be given the secretary and consideration of them will be taken later. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Gotts were in charge of the bountiful pot luck supper which was served. Mrs. Ida Moore was giftorian and Mrs. Roy Austin was chairman of the entertainment committee. At the next meeting, which will be with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Martin will have the entertainment in charge; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dolby, the supper, and Mrs. W. H. Boutell, the gifts.

About 30 of the neighbors and friends of Charles Thrasher planned and carried to a successful conclusion a surprise party at his home Tuesday evening last, the occasion being his — birthday. We are in ignorance of the number of birthdays to record, so will leave the blank. Anyhow, he is one of the several eligible young bachelors who live in the vicinity of Tuttle Hill and we feel safe in saying it is this side of 30. A delightful evening was spent in music, games, recitations and a peanut race. Roy Sherman was the gentleman's first prize, and De Ette Alderman, lady's first prize. Mr. Kleecamp and Mrs. Roy Sherman drew for the booby prize, which was won by the former, and proved to be an all-day sucker. A five-course luncheon was served at 10:30 o'clock and Mr. Thrasher was presented with a handsome Bible as a token of the esteem in which he is held.

Charles Campbell has a fine new woodhouse and back porch to replace the one the tornado wrecked. James Park preached Sunday at Friends church on "Believers and Unbelievers." You are invited to come any Sunday and find a welcome.

The Model Maids, met Thursday June 1, in the woods across from the Lorenzo Seamon home on the county line. The business session was short and the work for the day was a hike across the fields to Susterka Lake and back again, bringing with them from the new store various additions to the delicious lunch which was served under the trees at 5 o'clock. A program of school and boating songs followed until the meeting adjourned at 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Dan O'Brien and Mrs. Leo Salaske called on Mrs. Arthur Cross at the University hospital, Ann Arbor, Saturday.

The Bert Youngs house on the corner is fast nearing completion and will be a fine addition to the community.

The work at the gravel pit at Tuttle bridge is being rapidly carried on and the equipment will be in shape to get out gravel as soon as the roadbed on the Ridge road is ready. Those who have traveled the road to Milan will remember some experiences in the deep sand and heavy clay that obtains in some districts and will look forward to a trip over the completed road later.

Miss Charlotte Gorton, of Detroit, spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gorton.

Mrs. Ida Nelson, of Whitmore Lake, is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Clara Tuttle.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rust entertained their nephew, De Motte Guy, and wife, of South Bend, Ind., Memorial day.

The closing exercises of Tuttle school were well attended and splendidly carried out. The president of the P. T. A., Mrs. Andrew Martin, called the meeting to order, and after a short business session adjourned to meet the third Friday in September. The program, in charge of the teacher, Mrs. Jennie Cass Laffin, follows: A welcome son, by the school; address of welcome, Mary Downer; Keeping Holiday, Grace Martin; Who is She? Mrs. Garth Beckington gave a group of songs for the children and responded to an encore.

He formerly was principal of Belleville high school and it was under his leadership that Mrs. Laffin graduated. Mr. Fisher said two things would always make that class stand by itself in his memory. One was his wife was a member and the other that every member taught school later. Raymond Collar gave the valedictory and the exercises closed with a song by the school.

STILL LOOKING FOR HIS $80.

Albert Strasel, of Willis, owns a garage. He did $80 worth of repairs on an automobile belonging to O. Stillwagon and L. Buston. Stillwagon and Burton went to the garage and wanted to know if they could test out the car before paying Strasel. He allowed they could, and the car went so good that the pair drove to Steubenville, Ohio, and have no notion of coming back. Strasel saw someone at the sheriff's office and later the prosecutor Thursday afternoon, who advised Strasel that he could not get a warrant for the men as it was not a criminal offense but rather a breach of trust.

STORIES OF GREAT INDIANS

TEDYUSKUNG'S DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

BECAUSE his name has been perpetuated in a famous political organization, Tammany or Tammany, is the best-known Indian of the Delaware tribe. But there was another chief of the Lenni-Lenape who ranks as high, and a part of the honor due him has been paid in a monument erected in Fairmount park, Philadelphia, to Tedyuskung (Kekeuskung—"The Healer").

About 1720 the Iroquois, conquered the Delawares, forced them to accept the title of "women" and began selling their lands on the Delaware and Susquehanna rivers to the colony of Pennsylvania. Finally the Lenni-Lenape settled on the Ohio. When the struggle between the French and English centered in the Ohio valley in 1754 the Delawares felt that they were about to be driven from their last refuge. They rose in rebellion against both the Pennsylvanians and the Iroquois and attacked.

A council was called at Easton, Pa., in July, 1756. Tedyuskung issued a Declaration of Independence. "The Delawares are no longer slaves of the Six Nations," he said. "I, Tedyuskung, have been appointed king over the Five Nations. What I do here will be approved by all. This is a good day. I wish that the same spirit that possessed that good old man, William Penn, the friend of the Indians, may inspire you white men today."

For 50 years the Delaware chief had borne the commonplace name of "Honest John," but now he was hailed as "King Tedyuskung," and was sent to give the "big peace halloo" to his tribe and invite them to a larger conference to be held later. He started on this important errand, arrived at Fort Allen and then he went on a drunken spree lasting for days.

The Iroquois derided his "declaration" and sought to discredit him. They failed, and from that time the power of the Iroquois over the Delawares waned. He demonstrated his ability in later councils. Although it is charged that the white councillors tried to get him drunk every night, he always appeared at council the next morning able to cope with them.

He succeeded in getting the Delawares' wrongs adjusted and his influence brought about a treaty of peace which prevented the French and Delaware alliance. He had saved the Ohio valley to the English. His death was scarcely heroic. In the spring of 1763 his house was set on fire during one of his drunken debauches—probably by some of his Iroquois enemies—and the old chief perished in the flames.

KING HENDRICK TRADES AN EMPIRE FOR A COAT

NO OTHER white man in history ever had more influence over the red man than Sir William Johnson, colonial superintendent of Indian affairs. At his baronial mansions in western New York, "the Hall" and "The Castle," he received members of the Iroquois confederacy as equals and it was his influence which made them allies of the English instead of the French during the French and Indian war.

One of the chiefs who frequently visited Johnson Hall was a Mohawk named King Hendrick. One day Sir William received from England some richly-embroidered clothing. King Hendrick was present when it was unpacked and the gaudy attire caught the fancy of the red man. The next morning he approached Sir William. "Brother, I had a dream," he announced. "Indeed," replied Johnson, "what did my red brother dream?" "I dreamed that you gave me one of those fine coats," said the Mohawk, and Sir William, greatly amused, gave him the garment.

Some time later Johnson visited Hendrick's camp. They smoked awhile in silence. "Brother, I had a dream last night," finally stated Johnson. "What did my pale-faced brother dream?" asked the chief. "I dreamed that this tract of land was mine"—and Sir William described a square of the richest land in the Mohawk valley, containing nearly 100,000 acres.

Hendrick was completely taken aback by the enormity of the request, but he could not be outdone in generosity. After a moment he said: "Brother, the land is yours." "But," he added earnestly, "you must not dream again!" By playing Indian on Hendrick, Sir William had acquired land which made him one of the largest landholders in the colonies.

During the French and Indian war Johnson persuaded King Hendrick to join him in marching against an invading force of 2,000 French under General Dieskau, who was coming from Canada. On September 8, 1755, they met the French at Lake George.

When Johnson decided to detach a part of his force for a flank attack he asked King Hendrick if he thought a certain number would be enough. "If they are to fight, they are too few," replied the chief. "If they are to be killed, they are too many." Acting upon this advice, Sir William kept his force together and attacked. A great battle followed in which King Hendrick was killed while fighting bravely at the head of his warriors.

ELECT OFFICERS.

The M. E. Ladies' Aid society held their final meeting of the season last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. R. Gorton. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. Warner; first vice-president, Mrs. George Myers; second vice-president, Mrs. J. E. MacAllister; recording secretary, Mrs. J. O. Grimes; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. R. Gorton; treasurer, Mrs. Howard Chapin. Annual reports were given and Mrs. Henry Frain read a memorial for Mrs. Elizabeth Cook. John Finch sang and Robert Benford played a piano solo.

PRESENTED SUM OF MONEY.

The faculty dames of the Normal college have presented a sum of money to the Morrison home on the campus to be used in helping to pay for the piano. The faculty dames also aid in supporting the Y. W. C. A. organization at the Normal.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. Clarence S. Burns, minister. The Pennsylvania primary elections took place in that state on May 16. Candidates for governor on both Democratic and Republican tickets who stood four square for the maintenance of the Volstead act were chosen. Also the two candidates for the United States senate chosen in the Republican primaries and a majority of the candidates of both parties as well as the candidates for the state senate and house are vowed friends of the dry law enforcement being fought so strenuously in that once-soaking wet state.

Not a big paper of the four great news collecting agencies of the United States said a word in commendation.

We wonder why the great metropolitan papers are so wet just now. There must be money in it. However, the voters are loyal to the constitution.

NOTICE.

The Board of Review will be in session at Council Hall on Monday, June 12th, 1922, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. and remain in session at least two days to hear objections and adjust all assessments.

Signed: BOARD OF REVIEW.
H. C. HOLMES, Clerk.

Ashamed of Mourning.

The Syrians regarded mourning for the dead as an effeminate practice, and when they grieved they put on women's clothes as a symbol of weakness.

Vacation Togs Are Ready

Such a variety of garments as one needs for a vacation. There must be sports dresses, a few dainty frocks, knickers, sweaters, blouses, separate skirts, and a variety of hosiery. Besides this there will be step-in suits, bloomers, teddies, gay sports handkerchiefs and silken scarfs. One has to be so very careful to remember them all.

For sport dresses we suggest bright colored roshanara crepe, ratine, of linen, and for the daintier apparel organdie, voile, or figured crepe de chine. White knickers are the very latest thing in sports wear. Then there are sweaters of divers kinds—silk or wool, Bramley "V" or Tuxedo styles—and lovely lingerie blouses to wear under them.

Separate skirts may be silk, wool or cotton—plain colored, plaid, or striped. Some are gayly colored and some have the popular fringed hems. In hosiery you'll like gray or nude—or perhaps black with open work clocks—and possibly the new Rolette variety in white. Checkered gingham "undies" are so popular with vacationers, and a glove silk set or two just for a change. Handkerchiefs and fringed scarfs vie with each other in their gay hues.

New Modes For Bathers

The bathing suit is so important that we give it special mention. Jersey and silken models of simple design—many with a flash of color—may be had in all the popular shades. Bathers will revel in them.

The Boaster.
The man who boasts is walking backward toward the verge of a precipice.—Archison Globe.

"What do you want?" she asked sullenly, frowning at him.
Oscar jumped to the ground.
"I come down to see you, Pollyop," he rejoined, coming forward. "Who were you talking to?"

The only safe way to get along with the farmer, Polly had concluded, was to have nothing to do with him.

"Leave me be, Oscar Bennett!" she shrieked. "I don't want nothin' to do with you. I'm goin' home."

To cut off her retreat, Oscar needed to take but a couple of strides, and he promptly took them.

"Jeminy crickets!" he expostulated. "Don't be so confounded short, Pollyop! You needn't be mad because I swatted you one. You aren't my woman yet, but you're going to be just as soon as I can get shunt of my lady Robertson."

Observing no signs of softening in the girl's face, he switched his attack.

"Say, where'd you get that lamb?"

This query unfolded new terrors for Polly. She had not thought of the lamb belonging to anyone but herself. Had she not found him dying in the water and loved and fed him ever since? She looked first at the man, then down at the lamb.

"He's mine, Oscar," she hesitated. "I've had him two hull days now."

Oscar laughed.

"A likely story!" he jeered. "How long since squatters raised sheep? Where'd you get him?"

"Found him," she answered, putting her hand on the little animal.

"Then he isn't yours," he retorted, "and he can't be anybody's but mine. I thought I was missing some lambs."

Polly's eyes filled with alarm. She was trying to frame an argument in favor of herself and the creature she loved.

"When you find a thing dyin' in a creek, Oscar," she faltered at length, "you can take him home an' love him, now can't you?"

The man's loud guffaw brought a deep flush to the girl's face. She placed herself directly between him and the lamb.

"He's mine," she insisted. "He'd drowned sure if I hadn't jumped into the drink an' pulled him out."

Her words made the farmer certain where the creature came from.

"Dead or alive, he's mine!" he exclaimed.

Besides coveting the lamb, he hated the squatter girl's way of fondling animals. When he got her, he determined, he would take all of that kind of nonsense out of her.

With one sweep of his mighty hand, he thrust her aside, and, whipping out his knife, he cut the rope that held Nanny Hopkins to Polly's arm. Then, in spite of the girl's frantic cries and her desperate fighting against it, Oscar picked up the lamb.

Pollyop screamed frantically, for from the look on his evil face, she saw instantly what he intended to do. He was going to kill Nannyop! Again she flew at him, but he was tall and strong and held the lamb aloft in the air high out of her reach. With a rough oath he pushed the girl from him so roughly that she fell. When Polly scrambled up, he had the lamb in one hand and a large stone in the other.

"Oscar!" she shrieked.

She dropped to her knees, clasped Wee Jerry in her arms, and shrouded his face and her own in her curls. When she dared look up again, Oscar had thrown the dead lamb on the ground.

"There," he grunted, "that's to teach you a lesson, Miss Polly Hopkins. And now I'll open your eyes to something else."

As he crossed to her, she tried to struggle to her feet; but her legs were weak, and she was sick over the quivering body there in the road. In another minute Oscar had snatched her up in his arms.

She shrieked again and again; and Jerry's loud cries followed, as she fought desperately with the burly farmer.

Once out of sight of the Red Cross poster and the little group in front of it, Percival checked his horse. Bay Dexter shook his head and champed his bit in disapproval. He was accustomed to mad, harum-scarum gallops, and he loved them; but this morning, especially since the pause by the fence corner, he had been compelled to mope along like a worn-out old nag.

His master was thinking, really and seriously thinking. Happily born and the heir to an immense fortune, his way through life so far had been marked out for him. He had gone to war carelessly, in a mood of hot patriotism and because it was the thing to do. Over there he had done his share and gained, especially from his French comrades, an inkling of life's vital purpose. He had decided that, when he returned, he would do something worth while, something to make this world a little better because he had lived in it.

Now he was home; and almost the first day had come to him this appeal. He smiled ruefully at the recollection of Pollyop's plea. He had promised to help the squatters, and he meant to do it. Suppose it did bring him into conflict with Marcus MacKenzie! He knew how to fight, and a good fight was not bad fun.

Faintly from the direction he had ridden, the sound of cries came to his ears. Idly he wondered what the row was. Some squatter man disciplining his wife, he decided; but he could not stand to have a woman beaten!

He vaulted into the saddle and raced back over the road. It was not long before he located the place where the screams came from. Then Bay Dexter had an opportunity to show all the speed he had.

The sight of Pollyop writhing in the strong arms of a man he did not recognize made Percival see red. He was off his horse with one leap, and two long strides took him to Oscar's side.

One blow from his powerful knuckles in the farmer's face staggered Bennett and freed Polly so quickly that she fell to the ground. Instinctively she crawled out of the way of the battling men. The blow that had released her had done no damage to Bennett except to aggravate his rage. He recovered himself and confronted his assailant, dripping oaths like rain from a cloudburst.

Bennett took the offensive, his fists flying like flails. He wanted to get his arms around the other fellow, to trip him and make the fight a rough and tumble on the ground, but Percival avoided the rush, and struck as Bennett went by. Again and again Bennett tried to come to close quarters. But he could not; neither could he hit his elusive opponent. At length he hesitated, distressed as much by his own efforts as the blows he had received.

Then Percival stepped in, and quickly it was all over. Two well-planted thumps laid Bennett like a log on the ground.

Robert dusted off his hands, picked Wee Jerry up, and handed him to his sister.

"Did he hurt you, Polly?" he queried, and her answer was positively gleeful: "Nary a bit, sir, an' I reckon the big lummock's got a plenty this time."

Robert brushed off his clothes slowly. The farmer still lay on the ground. "Get up," ordered Percival scornfully, touching the prostrate man with the toe of his boot. "Get up and make off if you don't want me to lick you again."

Oscar rolled over and crawled slowly to his hands and knees.

"The ground's kinda wabby, ain't it, Oscar?" Polly giggled.

"Get out," commanded Robert, once more.

Bennett scrambled to his feet, shook his fist at Polly, snatched up the little dead lamb, and in another moment had climbed the fence and was gone.

"What were you fighting about?" began Robert, looking keenly at Pollyop.

Tears hung on the girl's lashes, and the sensitive underlip quivered.

"Oscar said as how Nannyop were his," she murmured. "Weren't it awful for him to swat it with that stone that way?"

"Did you?" He broke off the question abruptly. He was going to ask her if she had stolen the lamb; but an expression in the pleading, misty eyes stopped him.

"I found the little feller drownin' in the creek, sir," she explained with bowed head. "I just took him home to love him, that was all."

The strange, thrilling emotion that had overcome Robert but a short time ago in the presence of this squatter girl attacked him again.

"What can I do to help you, child?" he demanded sharply.

Polly flung out her hand. Help! that was what the squatters wanted. The little lamb was dead. Nothing could ever hurt it any more. But there were her people—

"Just help Daddy Hopkins!"—she choked and went on—"an' all the poor folks in the Silent City, an'—I'll love you forever and forever!"

After that the "littlest mother" made large strides upward toward the "greatest mother." Every little worried thing in the woods, every heavy heart in the squatter settlement felt the difference in Polly Hopkins. She smiled more, she talked more; and, when she found a group of her women-folks wondering how their absent laddies were, she led them in smiling assurance to Old Marc's fence and there repeated what Robert Percival had said about the Greatest Mother in the World.

One morning Pollyop was cleaning the shanty and Granny Hope was seated by the stove. A sharp rap came on the door. When Polly opened it and recognized the caller, she would have closed the door and barred it if a man's heavy boot, thrust across the threshold, had not prevented her. There in his riding clothes, haughty and frowning, stood Marcus MacKenzie.

"Where's Jeremiah Hopkins?" he demanded, eyeing Pollyop sternly.

She fidgeted with the edge of her apron. Had MacKenzie come to harm her best beloved?

"My daddy's gone out," she returned finally, in a low tone.

"Then I'll wait," said Marcus. "I'll sit down and wait."

Polly set out a chair for him, her legs trembling so she could scarcely stand. Granny Hope grunted out a word of greeting, but the man gave her no answer; and, after blinking at him a few times, the old woman fell asleep.

"This is a rotten hole," spat out MacKenzie presently, looking at the girl.

This scornful comment on the quarters Daddy Hopkins worked so hard to support touched the squatter girl to the quick. She kept the hut as clean as broom and lake water could make it!

"It's our home, mister; all we got," she replied, and she straightened her shoulders with dignity.

"Totten, just the same," repeated Marcus. "Say, you! Come and stand here before me."

He touched a spot on the floor with his riding whip; and Polly stepped upon it.

"Now you listen to me," he said sternly. "I've come with a proposition to your father, and if you've any influence with him, you'd better talk him into it."

Polly's face brightened a little. Then it was not real harm coming to Daddy Hopkins today. She wished now that he would come in; and, almost as if in answer to the throbbing of her nerves, Hopkins passed through the doorway with Wee Jerry clinging to his neck. The trembling girl saw his face grow gray at the sight of his powerful enemy.

Jeremiah made an awkward bob of his head to Marcus, slipped Jerry into his arms and without a word sat down. And Pollyop, full of curiosity and anxiety, sat down too, her brilliant eyes steadily leveled upon MacKenzie.

"Hopkins," began Marcus, "I've come with a proposal to you. If you've got any sense, you'll impress its value on the rest of your fellows here, for by hook or by crook, I intend to break up this settlement and burn these shacks."

One long gasp came from Polly. Her father said nothing but looked back at the speaker as if he had not heard.

"Daddy ain't got the hull right to say what's what," she interrupted suddenly. "There's lots of squatters."

"Then call in some of the others," MacKenzie snapped. "And don't be long about it. I want to know what's going to be done before I go."

Polly flashed a glance at her father.

"Go get 'em, brat," he directed. "An' bring Larry."

Out into the settlement she went, and when she came back into the shanty, there followed her an angry set of ill-clothed men; and outside a sullen group of women waited to hear what Old Marc had to offer.

One by one the men silently ranged themselves in a row around the hut wall while Polly stood at her father's shoulder, one hand resting upon it, and the other on Wee Jerry's head.

Marcus MacKenzie knew the group of men he had to deal with. He knew their wicked ways, how they thieved, how they used their nets against the law, and how they shot game out of season. He remembered, too, how many had been sent to prison with his aid, but this day he hoped to get rid of them all at once.

"I want to pay you fellows to go away from Ithaca." He plumped the proposition at them badly. "If it hadn't been the easiest way out, I wouldn't have considered it a minute. But after talking it over with my lawyer, I've decided to give you all a sum of money if you'll leave peacefully."

Now You Listen to Me," He Said Sternly.

This scornful comment on the quarters Daddy Hopkins worked so hard to support touched the squatter girl

A sound of boots moving on boards was his only answer. Polly coughed nervously.

"Now this is what I'm going to offer," went on MacKenzie. "No one can make me raise the price one cent. I'll give you men twenty-five dollars apiece; you sign over to me your squatter rights; then take your women and kids and go."

There was not a word in answer to this. Only Wee Jerry felt Daddy Hopkins clasp him tighter.

Realizing that the stony silence that met his offer was practically a refusal, MacKenzie got to his feet.

"You can take it, or—or go to h—l for all I care!" he exclaimed.

He turned toward the door; and then Pollyop got back her breath, and while the squatter men watched sullenly, she stepped in front of him.

"You're in wrong, mister," she flared. "You're d—d generous, ain't you? Twenty-five dollars wouldn't take us anywhere, an' where would we go, anyhow? This ain't movin' day in the Silent City. You've made your talk, now scoot along."

Marcus fixed her with eyes angry beyond description. Her own blazed back at him as she pointed toward the door.

"Scoot out," she repeated, "an' don't be comin' again."

MacKenzie lifted his riding whip threateningly, and every man with a growl started forward; but as the whip fell back to his side, they sank down again.

Then it was that he shifted the whip to his left hand and took from his pocket a shining pistol; and although Polly whitened, she held her ground.

Comfort shoes have earned their place with the woman of fashion

COMFORT first! In the wide acceptance of this fine modern idea, none has been more forward than the social leader.

To her, particularly, ordinary footwear has meant style tyranny.

So she has welcomed this new trend in better shoe design. The relaxation, the buoyant restfulness of Martha Washington Comfort Shoes have earned from her instant, whole-hearted appreciation. And the easy gracefulness of design has found added approval.

Women everywhere wear them. This is the shoe for instant, grateful relief, to over-taxed feet. It is distinctly presentable in appearance—its good looks need no apology to the unexpected visitor.

BOYS AND GIRLS CLUB PROJECT STARTED

During the past month eight poultry clubs were organized in different sections of the country and approximately 3,500 day-old chicks were distributed among the club members. Five pig clubs have been organized during the past month. Two sewing clubs are also carrying on their project during the summer. Several canning clubs have been started and canning demonstrations will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Three corn clubs are in operation this year and the boys have already planted their corn. Six garden clubs were also organized. During the next month calf clubs will be completed and time will be spent largely with livestock and canning clubs. Plans are also under way for the club camp at Camp Birkitt the first and second weeks in August. Approximately 400 boys and girls are now enrolled in club work in the county. County Club Agent Watt has been kept busy the last few weeks in getting these club projects started for the summer.

FIFTY PURE BRED PIGS DISTRIBUTED THIS WEEK

About 50 pure bred pigs will be distributed among members of boys' and girls' pig clubs in Washtenaw county during this week and next. About one-half of these have already been purchased for club members and the work will be completed next week. All of the members are purchasing pure bred pigs, some being Polands and others Duroc Jersey breed. The members will raise their pigs under the supervision of the county boys' and girls' club agent, A. L. Watt, and in co-operation with the Michigan Agricultural college and the U. S. department of agriculture. This is one of the important phases of farm bureau work being carried on in Washtenaw county. Each club member is required to keep a record of his summer's work and write a report at the end of the season. In addition to this he has to exhibit his pig and will likely do this at the county fair this fall, where many cash and special premiums are being offered to club members.

Livestock club members are eligible to try out for the livestock judging team which will represent the boys and girls of Washtenaw county at the State fair this fall. There will also be a judging contest at the county fair this fall. Several trips to the International Livestock exposition are being offered for winners in these contests as well as livestock exhibitors.

MARKET DAY OPENED HERE LAST SATURDAY

Market day opened up for the first time this year last Saturday. A fine showing of farm produce was on display and met a ready sale from buyers who were down early with their market baskets.

Market days will be Wednesdays and Saturdays during the season and will be under the personal direction of Market Master Scott, who has made a fine record in previous years. The location this year is on Huron street, from Michigan to Pearl.

THREE LOCAL PEOPLE TO TEACH AT NORMAL

At the summer Normal this year it is announced that three local people will give part of their time to teaching art. Mrs. Ernest Goodwin will teach a course in sculpture; D. L. Quirk, Jr., will give a lecture course on the drama, and Alexander Mastro Valerio will teach painting. All three are well known in Ypsilanti as artists of ability in their different lines. Mrs. Goodwin had some of her work on exhibition at the college last March which won high praise and also gave a demonstration with the Little Players recently.

Mr. Valerio is a recognized artist of ability. He came to Ypsilanti about four years ago and has had many of his paintings exhibited in the larger cities of the country. His paintings in the First National bank of this city won for him fine comment by all who saw them.

Mr. Quirk is the man who put the Little Players on the map and has done much for Ypsilanti in the way of high class entertainment. The Players have a national reputation.

That the college has honored these citizens by tendering them a place on their teaching staff is proof of their standing as artists of ability.

"PEG O' MY HEART" GIVEN BY CENTRAL HIGH.

Pupils of Central high school presented the play, "Peg o' My Heart," Thursday evening of last week in the high school auditorium and repeated the presentation Friday evening. The play is a comedy of Irish wit and pictures of English society. The cast was as follows: Peg, Elizabeth Harwick; Jerry, Orlan Cheever; Mrs. Chichester, Kathryn Boss; Alarie, her son, Walter Banta; Ethel, her daughter, Hazel Miller; Montgomery Hawkes, Wendell Miller; Christian Brent, Robert Leland; Jarvis, the butler, Carl Smith; Bennet, the maid, Helen Squires.

New scenery and light which have been secured for the auditorium were first used for this play.

COUNTY GRANGE MEETING.

There will be a county grange meeting Tuesday, June 13, with a pot luck dinner at noon, at the home of the Manchester grangemaster, Walter Lawson. A splendid program is being arranged.

HOLD THEIR FINAL MEETING.

The Congregational Young Women's Guild held their final meeting for this season last Friday afternoon in Recreation park. The families of the members were guests. There was a series of games, followed by a picnic supper.

HOLD RECEPTION.

The reception at St. John's parsonage last Friday evening was a very enjoyable affair. In the receiving line to meet Father Dennis Needham were: Alex. Nulan, John McCann, Mrs. Alec Boutell and Mrs. W. P. Brooks. The young ladies of the parish served punch and waters in the dining room. Pink and white flowers tastefully decorated all the rooms.

LAST NUMBER NORMAL COURSE.

The last number of the Normal lecture course was given Thursday evening in Pease auditorium and was a play, "Seeing Mary First," put on by the Normal students under the direction of Prof. J. Stuart Lathers.

SOLICITING FUNDS FOR FOUNDATION.

Prof. N. A. Harvey, prominent Democrat, assisted by Martin Cremer and other prominent Democrats, are soliciting funds for the Woodrow Wilson foundation. Several Democrats have contributed substantial amounts toward the project.

BUNDLE DAY JUNE 14.

June 14 has been designated as Near East relief bundle day by Mrs. Alvord, president of the State Federation. At a meeting of the committee of the City Federation held Wednesday afternoon it was decided to collect from the different school buildings. Anyone having a bundle is asked to take it to the nearest school, where it will be called for and taken to headquarters.

- Three Days Starting - Sunday June 11th

There have been many proud moments in this theatre's history but none more proud than we will experience the first three days of next week, starting Sunday, June 11.

Proud—yes, proud we are to present the consummating dramatic achievement of the truest of all screen artists—NORMA TALMADGE. The world hails her as the first to reach perfection in her art; acclaims "SMILIN' THROUGH" as the wonderful symbol of that ascension.

"It is all that the screen can give."

A Personal Recommendation

The Martha Washington Theatre in Ypsilanti has never shown a more delightful or exquisite photodrama than "Smilin' Through." This truthful assertion is earnestly and eagerly written at the immediate conclusion of a special review.

Mrs. F. W. Signor.

NORMA TALMADGE "Smilin' Through"

8 Reels OF STORM AND SUNSHINE

It stands alone in its supremacy—

The first super-pictures our Norma ever made. The first in which charming Norma Talmadge has ever appeared. A love story wonderfully produced and which brings eight great reels of the most fascinating romance ever told.

It's a panorama of Smiles, Thrills and Tears, with Harrison Ford, Wyndham Standing, and a superb cast.
